The Party Plan That Fits on One Page

Plan the party you can actually enjoy, for a little one under five.

1. Who can take what?

Ask before you're frazzled. You don't have to do all of it.

Decorations and theme: _____

Gifts: _____

Food: _____

Venue or place: _____

Invitations: _____

Goodie bags and activities: _____

2. The three things that matter

1. A place to run. Grass, a lake, a corner with room to move.
2. One moment that's just for the birthday kid, the same every year.
3. Time with friends. Give them space, and the rest mostly takes care of itself.

3. What you can let go of

- Matching napkins and a perfect cupcake table.
- A goodie bag from a shop, if you're short on time or money.
- Styling. Nobody at a little one's party is grading it.

4. The day, roughly

- ☐ Arrive 30 minutes early, and set up the one thing that matters most.
- ☐ Welcome guests. One activity you can run with the kids.
- ☐ Cake and the one moment that's just for the birthday kid.
- ☐ Goodbyes, and the leftovers go home with someone.

5. Notes for next year
